Conference Overview

The International Scientific Committee and the Executive Board of ISCaP, the International Society of Cancer Prevention, together with the organizers of the 16th Barcelona World Congress on Gastrointestinal Cancer (WCGC), jointly invite you to both the 8th bi-annual ISCaP conference on Gastrointestinal Cancer Prevention on June 24-25, 2014, and the 16th WCGC on June 25-28, 2014. This year's ISCaP conference has a particular focus on the prevention of lower (colorectal) GI-cancers, and will include both primary prevention (chemoprevention) and secondary prevention (screening) of colon and rectal cancers.

Both the ISCaP and WCGC conference will be held at the same site, the International Conference Center in Barcelona, Spain. To maximize participation and interaction, the 8th International Conference on Clinical Cancer Prevention and its closing Consensus Conference on the optimal prevention of colon cancer will take place immediately prior to, and partially overlapping with, the start of the 14th World Congress on Gastrointestinal Cancers.

Goals

1. Review current cancer prevention and early detection strategies for GI cancers, focusing on colorectal cancers, with additional discussions of esophageal and stomach cancers.
2. Facilitate interaction among scientists, and offer a forum for students, fellows, and early cancer prevention scientists to interact with senior leaders in this field. These interactions will stimulate research collaborations, introduce scientists and clinicians currently in training to the cancer prevention community, and inspire research efforts capable of propelling the field of cancer prevention forward.
3. Evaluate current evidence relating to GI cancer prevention, and produce consensus recommendations for the research and practice of colorectal cancer risk assessment, screening, and prevention.

8TH INTERNATIONAL CONFERENCE ON CLINICAL CANCER PREVENTION 2014

with a Consensus Conference on Chemoprevention of Colorectal Cancer

Scope/Educational Objectives

This conference will provide a comprehensive update on the most recent results and progress in laboratory, clinical and epidemiological developments in the fields of molecular biology and genetics for GI-cancers (with a special focus on colon cancers) and their interactions with interdisciplinary clinical colon cancer prevention aspects and activities, such as:

- Preclinical models and experimental cancer prevention
- Cancer prevention and health politics
- Prospects of surrogate endpoints and biomarkers in cancer prevention
- Chemoprevention of GI-cancers (esp. colon cancer)
- International consensus meeting on the chemoprevention of colon cancers

Conjoining Society/Conference

In order to maximize attendance, participation, and representation of leaders in the field of gastrointestinal cancer prevention, the 8th biennial ISCaP meeting has been scheduled to immediately precede the 16th World Congress in Gastrointestinal Cancer (WCGC), supported by the European Society for Medical Oncology (ESMO), which is being held June 25th-28th 2014 at the same venue (Centre de Convenciones Internacional de Barcelona) as the ISCaP conference. The WCGC/ESMO program announcement can be accessed through the conference organizer IMEDEx at: www.worldgicancer.com.

Target Audience

This conference and the adjoining WCGC meeting should be of interest to physicians, scientists, clinicians, nurses, students interested in or practicing preventive and clinical oncology (particularly gastrointestinal cancer prevention and early therapy) at all stages of their educational and professional careers.

Educational Methods

This conference will use multiple methods of communication and interaction, including:

- formal presentations by internationally recognized experts in the field;
- panel discussions;
- interactive sessions fostering communication between early investigators and senior leaders in the cancer prevention community;
- presentations of selected abstracts;
- poster sessions
- and informal networking.

To maximize novice-expert interaction, the conference will feature an interactive session wherein junior clinicians and scientists will have the opportunity to meet individually with established faculty to discuss their research ideas and goals and receive expert, relevant career advice. The sessions dedicated to the development of a colorectal cancer prevention consensus statement will be based on the information presented in the formal presentations, panel discussions with comments from the audience, and an interactive session among presenters and other experts to develop the consensus statement. The current meeting program is outlined in this brochure, which can be viewed on the St.Gallen Oncology Conferences (SONK) www.oncoconferences.ch, ISCaP (www.iscac.org), and WCGC conference (www.worldgicancer.com) websites.

Invited Speakers

The ISCaP Organizing Committee has gathered leading experts from around the world to present and discuss cutting-edge research focused on gastrointestinal cancer prevention, particularly colorectal cancer prevention. The list of speakers and their affiliations is provided in the conference program. Invited speakers were selected based upon their prominence in the field of GI cancer prevention, risk assessment, and early detection, and the relevance of their work to clinical cancer prevention.

Venue

The 8th biennial ISCaP conference will be held at the International Convention Center of Barcelona (Centre de Convencions Internacional de Barcelona, CCIB). The CCIB is located at Rambla de Prim 1-17 in the technology/business heart of Barcelona, Spain, and is a smoke-free facility offering a full range of services.

Barcelona

Barcelona is a vibrant multi-faceted collection of diverse cultures. Encompassing 7 universities supporting a population of 200,000 students, numerous research institutions comprising a large scientific and medical community, and 24 hospitals/clinics, Barcelona offers a rich mix of both experienced and novice academic researchers and clinicians, which will facilitate the introduction of budding clinicians and scientists to leaders in the field of cancer prevention. More information on Barcelona can be accessed through the Turisme de Barcelona website at: www.barcelonaturisme.com.

Evaluation

A course evaluation will be distributed to all registered attendees of the conference. This form will provide conference participants an opportunity to evaluate and/or comment on the overall value of all events and activities associated with the conference. As in past ISCaP-hosted events, participants are strongly encouraged to provide feedback on the perceived impact of the program content on their knowledge, interest and/or interaction with the scientific community.

Accreditation/Credit Designation

The ISCaP Executive Board/Conference Organizers are currently in the process of applying for accreditation of this conference as a CPD activity by major accreditation councils (e.g., the Accreditation Council of Oncology in Europe (ACOE), and the European Accreditation Council for Continuing Medical Education (EACCME) of the European Union of Medical Specialists (UEMS). The 6th and 7th biennial ISCaP conferences were each granted European endorsement by the UEMS and awarded 12 European Continuing Medical Education Credits (ECMEC), which are recognized by the American Medical Association (AMA) as AMA PRA Category 1 Credits, and are also recognized by accreditation boards in China and Japan. The 7th biennial conference was awarded 9 CME credits by the ACOE. We anticipate the 8th biennial conference will be awarded similar accreditation.

CME Certificates and Attendance Verification Certificates

Certificates awarding the appropriate credit(s) and/or certificates of attendance will be provided to registered participants immediately prior to the adjournment of the conference. In the event that the participant's departure occurs prior to the scheduled conference adjournment, the certificates awarding credit and documenting partial attendance will be provided upon e-mail-request by info@oncoconferences.ch

About ISCaP

The International Society for Cancer Prevention (ISCaP) is a non-profit organization founded in 1995 to advance cancer prevention research and education by bringing together researchers and clinicians and fostering global collaborations. ISCaP, now under the leadership of Dr. Powel Brown, has hosted 7 biennial meetings under the presidencies of Drs. Umberto Veronesi (1995-1998), Frank Meyskens (1998-2004), and Jack Cuzick (2004-2013). These conferences were co-sponsored by the charitable Foundation St.Gallen Oncology Conferences (SONK, Switzerland), Cancer Research UK (CRUK, London, UK), the European School of Oncology (ESO, Milan, Italy), the European Society for Medical Oncology (ESMO, Viganello-Lugano, Switzerland), the European Cancer Prevention Organization (ECP, Hasselt, Belgium), the European Association for Cancer Research (EACR, Nottingham, UK) and the American Cancer Society (ACS, Atlanta, GA, USA), and have provided a forum for collaboration, education, and interaction to the international cancer prevention community.

Over the last decade ISCaP has invited leading experts from around the world to present and discuss cutting-edge research focused on prevention, particularly chemoprevention, of a broad range of cancers. The special focus of these meetings has been and will continue to be bridging the gap between laboratory-based prevention activities in model systems and large-scale clinical projects. Greater collaboration between these two sectors will facilitate progress across the cancer prevention community by providing clinical investigators with novel mechanistic findings, and laboratory scientists with clinical material supporting mechanistic prevention studies. In addition, these conferences offer an opportunity for students, fellows, and junior faculty to present their research findings. Thus, this conference is a major mechanism to attract early scientists to the field of cancer prevention, to maintain research in this critical area.

The previous ISCaP meetings, held in St. Gallen, Switzerland (1st-6th meetings), and Milan, Italy (7th meeting), were exciting, interactive venues which created an atmosphere conducive for forging the scientific collaborations necessary to propel the field of cancer prevention forward. In addition, each of the last three conferences dedicated a session to the development of a consensus statement on a major topic in cancer prevention: aspirin and non-steroidal anti-inflammatory drugs (5th biennial meeting, 2008) and breast cancer (6th biennial meeting, 2010), both published in the Lancet Oncology. A third consensus statement on the prevention of prostate cancer (7th biennial meeting, 2013) has been submitted for publication. These statements have been well-received by and highly influential within the global scientific community.
